Major support lines up for special benefit

"Our reader's response to the Sun sponsored 'Up The Creek' Relief Benefit has been spectacular," states publisher Norman Spaulding.

Cash donations as of Tuesday, February 7 total over $4,000. Many businesses and individuals have donated items and services for the musical event to be held at Hidden Valley Music Seminars on Saturday, February 11 starting at 6 P.M.

The need is great. The grant committee has received application from 10 survivor families with requests for help totaling over $100,000. Of the 135 households requesting aid in the Carmel and Carmel Valley area affected by the flood, the Los Helechos and Camp Stefani residents suffered some of the worst damage.

"This benefit probably could qualify for a world record based on the three weeks turn around time from idea to event. The principle individuals who are making it happen are Dorothy McEwen of The Holman Ranch, Kathleen Tarp and Sun staff reporter Virginia Parke," Norman observed.

Dorothy is heading up operations with unparalleled precision based on her knowledge and experience of producing events at The Holman Ranch.

Kathleen is supervising and participating in the concert. She is a seasoned concert and television performer.

Virginia is drawing on years of public relations expertise and talents along with her experience in major event production.

They are contacting the community for donations along with other volunteers. If you have not reached yet, please call The Holman Ranch at 659-2640 with your contribution. The special program insert in this issue will give you more details.

"Another important part of this event has been the participation and support of Steve Wolff and the Rosie's Bridge Advisory Committee consisting of survivor residents. They are helping each other daily as well as volunteering time for the benefit. "It is a pleasure to serve and be a part of this community," Norman concludes.

Buckeye event will raise funds for CV Library

"Night at the Old Buckeye" promises large doses of nostalgia, tasty food and beverages, and hours of music.

Local attorney Barry Harrow presented the idea last November to Susan McDonald-Brodey, president of the Friends of the Carmel Valley Library, as a possible fund-raiser for the Friends. Chuck Woodson, his wife Sherry Thomas, and Mike Kucher, former Buckeye owners, appeared with menus, memorabilia and the commitment to donate wine and beer for the event. In fact, Sherry's lamb stew, homemade rolls and cobble for dessert will be served as the core menu.

Konny Gloy, Kathy Nielsen, and Doug Pease joined the committee as Friends board members, to support librarian Gail Knoles in the effort of restoring the library's interior to its former Buckeye decor, and to arrange supplies, lights, publicity, and clean up. The Pebble Beach Company will lend its banquet service, from heaters to linens to wine glasses.

Skip Marquard will lend his field adjacent to the village park for parking. Bruce Michels president of the Kiwanis Club, agreed on behalf of the club to cosponsor the event. Victoria Rugg Studio offered its field to display the announcement banner.

Lori Kline is coordinating an ever-growing number of musicians who played the Buckeye, to fill in during Larry Hosford

'UP THE CREEK' Relief Benefit

Hole in one

Pebble Beach resident Peggy Oh shot a hole in one on the 6th hole at the Rancho Canada East Course on January 16, 1995.

The 174 yard shot was made with a 3-wood (Callaway Big Bertha).

Births

On January 24, 1995, a girl, Ellie Lauren, was born to Stephen and Sallyann Forzani of Carmel.

On January 26, 1995, a boy, Cody Lou Turnbull, was born to Daryl Turnbull and Julianne Oberg of Carmel.

A PLACE IN THE SUN

Virginia Parke

This is going to be a short one. Most of my time is focused on the 'Up The Creek" Relief Benefit sponsored by the Sun, but I sneaked away from Harry (my computer) last Sunday afternoon to watch the Little League tryouts.

First, I want to assure Peter Lyon that I am not trying to cover his beat, just keep from being blinded by Harry. What a delight to see over 100 boys and girls scampering around with numbers pinned to the back of their shirts, waiting for Wendy Thomas to call them to bat.

Adding to the expertly organized chaos was a lovable, semi-white, curly furred mutt named "Sammy". He took every opportunity possible to escort batters out to the diamond. One coach, probably John Segal, was heard shouting "Get him a helmet."

As the batters popped one toward the base line, a group of auditioning catchers could be observed keeping their eyes on the ball while running into each other. My favorite was the little slugger with dangling shoe laces and large glasses blasting the ball deep into the outfield. Volunteers Glen Nolte, Jim Saxton, Howard Rosen and Rick Tully were calling instructions and words of encouragement to each participant along with proud parents.

Deborah Warcken, helping Wendy keep track of the batting order in the announcer's booth, smiled as petite slugger 107 Natasha (Sorry, I did not get your last name) belted a ball past the outfielders playing tag. Thank you Peter for sharing this special event and for all the hours you and the volunteers invest to help make it happen.

and Jay Tolagson's breaks. Not only will the music be from the Buckeye era, at least thirty Buckeye bartenders and waitresses will take up their historic stations, wearing T-shirts designed for the occasion by Fashion Streaks of Sand City.

So far, Baume and Blume and the Oaks Deli have volunteered to add to the menu, and The Hospice of the Central Coast donated two cases of wine. Valley Typesetters designed the posters and tickets. Bob Meadows and Lee Rieman volunteered for security.

Tickets are available at the library, at the mid-Valley Safeway (see Lorraine), at the Carmel Valley Business Service (see Teresa or David), and at the door during the event. The public is welcome, but attendees must be over age 18. The event is 7 p.m. to midnight on Saturday, February 18; donation is $10 per person.

Water board looks at a new desal process

by Elizabeth Cowley

Joseph Farmer, from Laurence Livermore Laboratory, presented a special report on the status of the carbon aerogel desalinization process at the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District regular monthly meeting last Thursday, January 26.

Joseph Farmer is working under a Federal program to devise new uses for Cold War technologies. Carbon Aerogel was developed for some, as of yet undisclosed, Cold War purpose. Aerogel is unique due to its tremendous effective surface area. An extremely thin, roughly 2.5" by 2.5" square of Carbon Aerogel has an effective surface area of 2,500 square feet.

The "Capacitive Deionization and Carbon Aerogel Electrodes" process was initially developed to treat radioactive waste; desalinization is one of several other possible applications. The process entails running an electric current through stacks of carbon aerogel. The aerogel layers become alternately positively and negatively charged and the liquid to be treated is pumped through the layers. The negatively charged layers attract cations (positively charged ions) from the water and the positively charged layers attract anions (negatively charged ions) from the water. Testing of this process for treating radioactive waste is still underway; however, the process has been proven effective for desalinization and purifying water for semiconductor production.

Mr. Farmer explained that while the carbon aerogel process is indeed a proven technology, he has not attempted to try it on a municipal water supply scale and therefore could not offer a cost estimate at this time.

The carbon aerogel process has several advantages over the desalinization techniques such as being less energy intensive. Unlike reverse osmosis, the carbon aerogel process has no membranes and it is electrically recharged instead of chemically recharged, eliminating additional chemical by-products. As with all desalinization processes, a salty brine by-product is produced.

In 1985 the Federal Government allocated $50 million to develop desalinization techniques. The deadline to apply for these funds is September of this year. Water Management District Director Haddad asked Mr. Farmer if he would be interested in applying for some of this funding to develop a pilot carbon aerogel desalinization program in the Monterey area. Mr. Farmer said he would gladly look into it.

Question: What does Valentine's Day mean to you?

Troy Hussey

It's a good time to remember what we seem to forget the most: loving each other.

Deborah & Adam Ingram

It's a day to acknowledge the poeple I love and to let them know what they mean to me.

SCRIPT is an easy no-cost way to support schools

The Carmel Unified School District's funding project, called SCRIP, is different from most fund raisers for two major reasons.

First, it is not a onetime event but an opportunity to make supporting our school, our children, and our futures a way of life. Second, and possibly more importantly, it requires no additional expenditures from the participant, therefore people of all incomes can participate.

This is how it works. Parent groups at the Carmel Schools purchase gift certificates from local stores in large quantities, and at a discount. The groups then ask that people exchange their cash or checks for these gift certificates, which they call SCRIP, at face value and use them as they would use cash, for purchases they would normally make.

If the total amount of the gift certificate is not used, change is given in cash. The difference between the discounted price and face value of each certificate is given to the schools. A specific school may be designated, or the proceeds will be divided evenly.

Local grocery stores as well as retail stores and restaurants are represented in this project. Participants shop at stores they are currently using and purchase only those items they already buy such as groceries, pharmaceuticals, and clothing.

However, by exchanging cash or checks for SCRIP gift certificates, the money does double duty.

Participating stores are Albertson's, Safeway, Long's, Nob Hill, See's Candy, Baskin Robbins, and Chevy's. At Macy's and Mervyn's SCRIP can be used as cash, or to pay credit card bills. AT&T certificates can be used at home or by businesses to pay AT&T/Pac Bell bills.

SCRIP gift certificates can be obtained from Carmel District school representatives or at the Monterey County Bank on Via Nona Marie. If you would like more information, call 624-0828 or contact the following school representatives: Carmel High School - 624-4177; Carmel Middle School: 624-8863; Tularcitos - 626-2882; River - 624-0828.

Cameron Sheldon

Princeton Bound

by Elizabeth Cowley

Robert Louis Stevenson High School in Pebble Beach has a record of placing virtually all of its students in college. In 1994, 122 students graduated from Stevenson and together they received 496 college and university acceptances. Outstanding Stevenson senior Cameron Sheldon of Carmel has already secured early admission to his first college choice of Princeton. With a G.P.A. of 4.0, Cameron is a member of the Honor Society and is Cum Laude.

Stevenson offers a Senior Forum class for Freshmen and Sophomores led by Seniors to discuss pertinent teen issues. Cameron was one of 23 Seniors selected by the Dean to lead this class. Cameron is also on the Vailima staff, a literary magazine of student essays, fiction and poetry.

While Stevenson is a small school with about 500 students, it maintains an excellent athletic program. In addition to superior academic performance, Cameron is on the swimming team and Co-Captain of the Water Polo Team. He was also selected as a member of the All League second team for Water Polo; it is no wonder he was awarded the Scholar Athlete award which honors one boy and girl each trimester.

Cameron also boasts excellent musical talent as a violinist. He has been awarded a place in the All State Orchestra all 4 years of his High School career and a place in the National Orchestra and the State Honor Orchestra.

While Cameron possesses the talent to pursue a career as a musician he does not want to be a nameless violinist in the orchestra pit and has chosen to study History and Economics at Princeton.

Mid-Valley Fire District Report

by Elizabeth Cowley

The Mid Carmel Valley Fire Protection District (MCVFPD) Board of Directors held its monthly meeting last Wednesday, January 25, at 7:30 at the Mid Carmel Valley Fire Station. The 1995 officers were elected; Anne McGowan was elected President, F.J. Erner was elected Vice President and Tim Heaston was elected Secretary.

Mid Valley Fire Chief Carmichael presented a resolution to establish a burn season and burn permit fee. The Board approved a 1995 burn season from February 1 through April 30, excluding Sundays and 72 hours after rainfall. The burn season is limited to help the Air Quality District maintain air quality standards. The burn season can be discontinued if the California Department of Forestry declares a "fire season." Residents within the Mid Carmel Valley Fire District wishing to burn must acquire a permit for safety reasons. The MCVFPD has not charged a permit fee in the past and will not charge permit fees in 1995.

Joey Rogers, 5 year MCVFPD volunteer, is retiring as of February 1 of this year and moving to Idaho. The Board voted to authorize a disbursement from he severance pay plan for Mr. Rogers.

The MCVFPD has in the past received bids from auditing firms every 3 years and that 3 year period is up. Chief Carmichael recommended extending the current auditing firm's contract for another year as his staff is heavily burdened at this time and interviewing and processing bids is a time consuming process. In addition there are several uncertainties which would affect a bid at this time, such as potential consolidation with the Carmel Valley Fire District and potential changes in the organization of ambulance service. The Board agreed to extend the contract for another year.

The Mid Valley Fire Volunteers reported that the Carmel Valley Ranch will host a golf tournament for the volunteers on February 11 to be followed by the Installation Dinner at the Carmel Valley Inn. Thus far the volunteers are interested in pursuing the possibility of consolidating with the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District.

In response to the recent storms Chief Carmichael reported that the Mid Carmel Valley District was relatively undamaged. The MCVFPD was called to mutual aid by the Carmel Valley District and MCVFPD alerted Mid Valley residents in low lying areas on the potential flood danger. Chief Carmichael explained that it is important not to over commit personnel and equipment as others in jeopardy will be denied those services if they are called out unnecessarily. MCVFPD successfully facilitated the removal of a propane tank in a low lying area preventing further water contamination.

Director Harner reported on the progress of the Task Force to study the potential consolidation between the MCVFPD and the Carmel Valley Fire District. Thus far, no major obstacles have been encountered. The only significant difference in procedures between the MCVFPD and the Carmel Valley Fire District is the method of choosing the Boards of Directors. If consolidation were to proceed, there would be only one Board. In the past, the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District has been elected at a cost of approximately $4000, while the Mid Carmel Valley Board members have been appointed by their County Supervisor, a process which is less expensive and less democratic. However, Director Harner does not see this as a major issue.

The Mid Carmel Valley Fire Protection District Board of Directors meets at 7:30 every fourth Wednesday at the Mid Valley Fire Station; the meeting is open to the public.

Con uses CV Library as meeting point in $2,200 money scam

The Monterey County Sheriff's Department announced an incident of Grand Theft which took place at the Carmel Valley Library on January 18.

Carmel Valley resident Ruth R. McCullough, of Laureles Grade Road, had received a call at her home from a confidence artist who claimed to be an investigator at her bank, Coast Federal Savings of Carmel. He told her that someone had tried to withdraw $2100. from her account and he needed her assistance in his investigation, which also included some reported improprieties which had occurred at her bank in the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

He told her to write a check out for $2100 and cash it at her bank to assist him in his investigation. She was told to act natural while cashing this check, and not to tell any of the bank employees of his investigation.

After cashing the check she arranged to meet the confidence artist at the Carmel Valley Library where Mrs. McCullough gave him the $2100 in cash.

The confidence artist was on foot and showed a gold badge within a wallet he was carrying. No vehicle was seen, and it is believed that there was a second male individual involved, as she spoke with a second individual briefly over the telephone prior to cashing her check.

It is unknown how this confidence artist knew that McCullough had an account with this particular bank.

WHAT'S NEXT? Mel Vercoe

Dictatorships seem to be more efficient than democracies. A dictator, for example, who wants to start a war with another country, can do so by just starting it, and if he wants to take a lot of money out of his country's Treasury for spending money, or to give away, he can just do it.

In a democracy, like ours, for example, it would be more complicated. A President can start a war, just like a dictator could, but a President would have to announce that it was being started because of an emergency. Right after that, he could go ahead with the war. However after a time interval of several days, maybe a couple weeks, he would be required to explain to Congress what was going on. I think it's called the War Powers Act.

Similarly, if a President wants to take some money out of a Treasury, like maybe $20 billion, to shore up the carelessly handled economy of a foreign country, Mexico, for example, to make sure that some big investors on Wall Street don't suffer losses, he can just go ahead and do it, but here again, he has to make the announcement that it is an "emergency," which gets him out of having to ask Congress about it. In addition to making the announcement, he might even be required to sign something, to get the Treasury to release the money.

Actually, the extra $20 billion added to our $4.8 trillion debt will hardly be noticed. Some of us at the bottom of the ladder have probably never seen $20 billion. The best way to visualize it would be to glue 20 billion one dollar bills, end to end, to make a strip long enough to wrap around our Earth 80 times. That strip of dollar bills would be two million miles long. I have a 74 Datsun I'd like to sell for $50,000 to anybody who thinks we'll ever get that $20 billion back from Mexico.

McPherson says "NO" to pay hike

Final legislative reports show that Assemblyman Bruce McPherson returned over 12% of the $190,000 base allowance he receives for the operation of his Assembly offices.

In addition, Assemblyman McPherson turned back 15% of the per diem compensation that legislators receive when they are in Sacramento conducting legislative business.

"I feel it is important in these difficult economic times that elected officials lead by example," said McPherson. "At a time when we are asking California's schools and families to make do with less, elected officials should show the way."

Assemblyman McPherson is also returning the 37% pay raise that legislators were due to receive in 1995, equivalent to nearly $20,000.

FROM WHERE I STAND
Lee Phelps

Do you have $100,000 in savings?

If you work for a living, and are truly in the "middle class" income bracket ($25,000 to $50,000 a year), the odds are your answer is: Are you kidding? No way.

You could have, according to a study by the National Center for Policy Analysis if . . .

If governments -- local, State, and Federal -- had limited their tax appetites over the past 45 years, and held total taxes to a level of no more than twenty-three percent of Gross National Product (GNP).

The study's author, University of Texas professor Gerald Scully, analyzed that 45-year span and determined that America's "Ideal Maximum" total tax rate, for all levels of government, is 23 percent. Higher rates become a burden on the economy because they reduce incentives to work, produce, invest and save.

"When government is talking about 23 percent of our incomes, the last dollar collected does as much harm, as good," according to Scully. His study indicates the U.S. economy has paid a very heavy price because the total governmental tax burden has been too high over the past four decades or so (since about 1950). In more specific terms:

* If an average tax rate of 23 percent had been in effect from 1949 to 1989, the nation's economic growth rate would have averaged 5.56% annually, instead of the actual 3.5% we had.

* At the higher growth rate (5.56%) real GNP would have been $13.6 trillion by 1989, instead of the actual $6.2 trillion. The higher GNP would have generated the same amount of tax revenues -- and exactly the same amount of government (less deficits) -- as the current high-tax economy does with a total tax rate of 40%.

Better yet, the average American family -- that's you -- would today have twice as much real income as it actually has, and an additional $100,000 socked away in savings, too.

Think about it. What Scully has shown with his study is one more piece of irrefutable evidence that, when government eats more than its fair share of your income pie with excessive taxes, the negative impact on you -- and society, and the economy -- far outweighs any ephemeral "social good" from spending those taxes.

That's how it seems, from where I stand.

COURTESY THOUGHTS FROM THE SUN

SHARING OUR BYWAYS & HIGHWAYS

There are precious few through roads in Carmel Valley, Pebble Beach, and the surrounding area. These roads carry precious cargo, people, supplies and services. The safe, courteous use of the roads is vital to our peaceful enjoyment of this very special part of the universe.

There are a few ways in which every one of us who uses these roads may contribute to the overall safety and smooth passage along our byways.

- Leave plenty of room between you and the car in front of you - avoid tailgating.
- Slow down when you are being passed by another car.
- Always be prepared and willing to surrender the "right of way."
- When you are able, stop and give assistance to disabled vehicles or lost tourists.
- Always slow to allow room for "turn-in" traffic from side roads and driveways.
- Slow drivers and sightseers are welcome. Slow drivers and sightseers should, however, pull onto the shoulder and stop to allow the easy passage of through traffic.
- Always think courtesy and cooperation when you drive these precious roads.

Every accident has much more than the direct human and physical damage. Every accident on our few through roads causes a major disruption for thousands of people and businesses. Use our precious roads with grace, concern and care.

Water District compares desal with dam

Recent publicity concerning a new and perhaps less expensive carbon aerogel process for desalination has heightened community interest in desalination.

A desalination plant large enough to replace the proposed new Los Padres Dam would need a capacity of 10 to 15 million gallons per day (MGD), as compared with the 3 MGD desalination project Peninsula voters rejected in 1993, District Engineer Andrew Bell told the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board at its monthly meeting on January 26.

Bell reported that the annual cost to the community would be greater for a 10 MGD plant than for the proposed 24,000 acre-foot New Los Padres Dam and Reservoir. He also identified questions about the technical feasibility of a 10 MGD plant.

Bell's preliminary estimate of capital cost for a 10 MGD desalination plant is $69 million versus $87.2 million for the 24,000 acre-foot New Los Padres project. Annual operations and maintenance costs for the larger desalination plant (without the carbon aerogel process) are $6.3 million versus $1.3 million for the dam. Including interest cost at 8 percent over 20 years, total annual costs for a 10 MGD desalination plant would be $15.2 million versus $12.9 million for the dam.

At the January 26 meeting, General Manager Jim Cofer responded to questions regarding the cost-effectiveness of a dam compared to desalination. Coffer stated that the State Water Resources Control Board is expected to rule in March on complaints that Cal-Am Water Company, the primary supplier to the Peninsula, is taking water improperly from the Carmel River system.

The State Board's decision is unknown at this time, but it may require that flows be maintained in the river to protect the steelhead fishery.

At present, so much water is taken from the river that an 8-mile stretch of river dries up every year, even in very wet years . A requirement to increase river flows could significantly reduce the water supply now available to Cal-Am.

Cofer identified a hypothetical situation in which the state might require Cal-Am to reduce by 5,000 acre-feet the amount of water it takes from Carmel Valley. If this happens, a desalination plant would have to produce 5,000 acre-feet per year just to maintain our present municipal supply, without any additional drought protection or water for planned growth.

In 1993, a 3 MGD plant was proposed in combination with the dam, Bell explained. It was proposed as the first phase of a long-term water supply project, to meet near-term needs until a reservoir project could be implemented. It would have a maximum capacity of 3,000 acre-feet per year. Voters rejected construction of the 3 MGD plant in June 1993.

A dam solves the environmental problems by providing enough water for the environment as well as municipal supply. A 3 MGD desalination plant would have virtually no effect on increasing Carmel River flows during dry periods.

The Water District environmental studies for the dam considered a 7 MGD stand-alone desalination plant. Of all the water supply alternatives, this performed the best in terms of expanded municipal water supply, but the worst in terms of Carmel River flows.

The 10 MGD desalination plant could provide drought protection and water for growth comparable to the dam, but river flow for environmental protection would be significantly less.

The feasibility of building a 10 MGD desalination plant is undetermined, Bell explained. The previously proposed Sand City site is large enough for a 3 MGD plant, but 7 MGD or more of capacity would have to be built probably in Marina or in Moss Landing in conjunction with the PG&E plant there. Radial wells along the beach for sea water intake and brine disposal require considerable space. Appropriate locations are limited and may be needed by the Marina Coast Water District or to meet future water demands for Fort Ord. The Water District does not have power to condemn property outside its boundaries.

A 10 MGD desalination plant would have a number of environmental impacts. These include construction impacts at the intake and outfall sites; impacts to sensitive dune habitats from intake, outfall, and pipeline construction; impacts of discharging reject water (brine) into the Monterey Bay Sanctuary; and air quality and other impacts related to generating and transmitting electrical energy to the plant sites.

These types of impacts were evaluated in detail for the previously proposed 3 MGD plant in Sand City and at a lesser level of detail for such a plant in combination with a 4 MGD plant north of Marina. Additional studies would be needed for a 10 MGD plant, Bell stated.

This is a submission prepared by the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District's staff.

Pebble Beach wins water award

A local water reuse project received Statewide recognition this week. The Carmel Area Wastewater District - Pebble Beach Community Services District (CAWD-PBCSD) Wastewater Reclamation Project received the 1994 Project of the Year award from the WateReuse Association of California.

The Reclamation Project had been chosen from nominees throughout California for its uniqueness in developing and implementing a public benefit reclamation project utilizing a model public-private partnership.

The partnership consists of three special district public agencies: the Carmel Area Wastewater District (CAWD), the Pebble Beach Community Services District (PBCSD), and the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District (MPWMD) plus the privately owned Pebble Beach Company.

The Wastewater Reclamation Project provides tertiary-treated reclaimed water for irrigation of golf courses and other recreational open space areas in Pebble Beach, releasing for other uses 800 acre feet of potable water previously used to irrigate these areas.

'UP THE CREEK' RELIEF BENEFIT

A CELEBRATION OF COMMUNITY SPIRIT...

The "Up The Creek' Relief Benefit Story

By Virginia Parke

On January 10 residents next to the Carmel River qualified for "national disaster" status. I covered the devastation. As I watched toys, furniture, appliances, boxes of personal possessions being dumped into a garbage container, my brain quit observing and started to feel the loss. People's lives had been trashed.

These events led to a meeting with Carmel Valley Sun publisher, Norman Spaulding. He had also been covering the plight of the survivors. We agreed that the paper could act as a catalyst for the community's out pouring of care and concern.

Norman Spaulding did what committed publishers of community newspapers do, he responded to the suggestion that the Sun sponsor and produce a relief benefit. Since I am a new comer to this community, I called Kathleen Tarp. She then called Dorothy McEwen.

This benefit is the result of the talent and willingness of Norman, Kathleen, Dorothy and myself. We are joined by many of the businesses, philanthropic clubs, musical artists and individual members of the greater Carmel Valley in expressing our support for friends and neighbors who need aid.

The Carmel Valley area is filled with special people who actively demonstrate the depth of our human capacity for love.

Quail Lodge earns 5 stars again

For the nineteenth year, Carmel Valley's Quail Lodge Resort and Golf Club has been named recipient of the Mobil Travel Guide Five-Star Award, the only property between Los Angeles and San Francisco with this rating.

In 1995, this prestigious recognition was given to 23 lodging establishments in the United States. "Five-Stars mean that a hotel is in an elite category, the best this country has to offer," said Mobil Corporation's Chief Executive Officer , Lucio A. Noto. The award is especially meaningful since more than 25,000 lodging establishments in the United States and Canada are rated on Mobil's one-to-five star system each year.

Ed Haber, Quail Lodge president, San Francisco native and past San Francisco City Amateur golf champion commented, "All of us are thrilled that we have maintained Mobil's five-star standard and look forward to carrying on that tradition.

He used this occasion to announce the addition of a complete health and beauty pavilion to Quail Lodge with an expected completion date of November 1995.

Service for flood victims

The Monterey Peninsula Ministerial Association is hold an interfaith service for those survivors who were affected by the recent Carmel Valley River flood. The service will be held Saturday, February 11 at 2:00 P.M. at Garland Park just off the Carmel Valley Road.

This service is a statement of celebration of the solidarity of the Monterey Peninsula Community interested in helping. A general acknowledgment will be give for all the volunteer and workers who helped out during this crisis. The offering will be give to the Carmel Red Cross for local flood relief.

Sand bags are still available

Weather predictions for continued heavy rain and strong winds have prompted some residents in low lying areas to take early measures to protect their property.

Sand bags for flood protection can now be made from a stockpile of sand at the mouth of Carmel Valley that has been contributed by Graniterock of Aromas.

Mike Marheineke, the company's Transportation Operations Manager, said 25 tons of sand have been delivered to the county yards at Highway 1 and Rio Road and is available to "anyone who needs it."

He adds that, "We're working on another load or two" to deliver.

Monterey County Supervisor Judy Pennycook, whose office arranged for the delivery to the county yard, praised the company for "coming forward to help out in this time of need."

The Cypress Fire Protections District, with the cooperation of the Monterey County Department of Public Works, is making sand and sandbags available to the public from the road materials storage facility at the mouth of Carmel Valley.

Paid and volunteer firefighters from the district and the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection will be providing the sand and sandbags to the public at the storage facility, which is located at the southeast corner of Highway One and Carmel Valley Road. Firefighters advise the public to use caution when entering the storage yard.

FUN IN THE SUN

Dave Lyon

Okay gang, picture this: The year is 1958; a small group of concerned citizens in Carmel Valley are sitting around at the Stirrup Cup (later the Runnin' Iron, briefly the No-Name Saloon) discussing the need for a Community Center in the valley. Among the topics discussed are size, location, and what types of programs to be offered to the local population.

"What we'll do," says Randy Randazzo, age 21 at the time, "is sell memberships in this new Community Center. Everyone here in the valley will pay a small annual fee, and that money will go towards providing an on-going series of adult and youth programs, as well as allow folks reduced rates on pool use and other Community Center related activities." Everyone nods in agreement.

The only concern is voiced by Lou Allaire handsome in his leather bomber jacket and aviator's helmet. "I think this is an excellent idea," he says, "but what about folks who don't want to be members? There might be people who wouldn't see the benefits of belonging to a Community Center." But Randy is unfazed. "Don't be ridiculous," he says, "everyone will want to join . . ."

Flash forward in time folks to 1995. Not too much has changed here in Paradise Valley. Pickup trucks have replaced the horses tied up in front of the Runnin' Iron, and a different Hank Williams can be heard on the juke box, but the strong sense of community that prevailed in this small town back in 1958 can still be found today.

If the recent flooding has taught us anything at all, it is that we live in a community populated by a large number of extremely giving, sharing, and concerned people, who will, without hesitation, come to the aid of their neighbors in need, and support the good of the community. For it is through the involvement of the many that the goals and needs of the community can be met.

The Carmel Valley Community Youth Center is a nonprofit organization, run largely by a dedicated group of local volunteers who believe strongly that this town deserves the best that the community has to offer. At the CVCYC, we are extremely proud of the support we receive from the families of Carmel Valley. More than 85% of our funding comes from the community at large! The continued existence of this very important center rests entirely upon how successfully we meet the needs of this community.

From 1958 to 1995: What's going on down at your local Community Center? SCUBA classes, springboard DIVING classes, kids SUMMER CAMP, free live CONCERTS in the Community Park Gazebo, SWIM lessons, Akido and Karate classes, RECREATIONAL swim at the very popular Community Pool, Adult COMPUTER CLASSES, and the first-ever after school community HOMEWORK CENTER for the kids of Carmel Valley.

What's on the horizon for this year and beyond? With the near-completion of the restrooms, the remodeling of the original Community Center Hall is well underway! This hall, built and funded by volunteers in a community "barn-raising," serves as a focal point for local classes, meetings, parties, receptions, townhall get-togethers, and other important community events.

Coming soon . . . a new performing arts workshop for youth; a pool lift, so that those confined to a wheelchair or unable to use the existing steps can still enjoy one of the best summertime recreational values around, the CARMEL VALLEY COMMUNITY POOL; and, the conversion of the current community Activity House into a full-time recreational center for the school-age children of Carmel Valley. Our kids DESERVE an alternative to spending their time on the streets!

Show your community pride and support your community center! Today, many hundreds of families and individuals are members and supporters of the CVCYC. These good folks are making it possible for everyone in Carmel Valley to enjoy the many benefits of having a nonprofit community center, which is able to offer so many classes, programs, and recreational and family-oriented events to the community at large. Are YOU a member of this very special community center? Amazingly, only 10% of folks in Carmel Valley are currently members! Stop for a moment and imagine all the endless things that could be accomplished, the programs and events that could be offered, and the incredible recreational facilities that could be provided if only more people chose to become active supporters of "the center of our community."

Perhaps you have already received our recent membership drive/support letter in the mail. If the Carmel Valley Community Center is making a difference in the quality of your life here, now is the time to become involved in supporting the on-going efforts of your friends and neighbors in creating a community center we can all be proud of. If you are not a member, now is the time to claim your voice in shaping the way this center meets the needs of this community, today, and in the years to come.

To the many of you good people who have already responded so generously to our recent letter, we thank you, and we welcome you to the circle of our supporters. If YOU wish to become involved, to become a member if you are not already one, to show your support for our efforts to provide the best for this community, or just to learn more about us, please contact us at the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center, at 659-3983. Better yet, stop in and visit us on Ford Road Monday through Friday, during regular business hours. We look forward to both your involvement, and your support.

Pennycook sets dates to meet with constituents

Monterey County Supervisor Judy Pennycook, whose 2nd District ranges from Prunedale through Salinas to Carmel Valley, will begin an experimental outreach program in two areas this month in an effort to establish closer contact with her constituency.

She has scheduled a meeting time for Prunedale constituents on February 17 at the Prunedale Library and with the Carmel Valley and Toro area constituents on February 24 at the Salinas Rural Fire District's station at Highway 68 and Los Laureles Grade. Both sessions will be from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

Pennycook, whose full-time office is in the Quadrangle building at Romie Lane and South Main Street in Salinas, said, "I want to make it convenient for people who don't want to drive all the way into town to talk to their supervisor."

Those interested in meeting with Pennycook at either of the February sessions are invited to call 755-5022 for an appointment. Those without appointments will be accepted on a time-available basis, she said.

The response to the two experimental sessions will determine whether they will be continued on a permanent basis, Pennycook said.

REAL ESTATE AGENTS ARE A SPECIAL BREED

Sometimes I ask myself, what kind of person would become a real estate agent? I know it's not a burning national preoccupation. On the other hand, when you entrust with someone the task of helping you buy or sell the one product which normally reflects your life's savings, you might wonder what sort of person they are.

Historically, our industry doesn't rate the highest with public confidence. On commissions, there is no guaranteed check. Weekend and evening work is virtually expected. Lawsuits are not uncommon.

As the market has taken a nose-dive so too have many agent's careers. Real estate has always had a high turnover rate: 5 years is considered a veteran. Now it's estimated that 15 to 20 percent of agents currently licensed in Monterey will leave the business this year. They are unable to support themselves in this market.

So why would someone choose real estate as an occupation?

I believe the reason why people used to be in the business, and the reasons why people are choosing to get in the business are changing. And these changes will dramatically effect the way real estate sales are conducted in the future.

Most of the change has to do with getting and staying educated. The education that is required is not only one of new laws and issues, it is much more. It is learning how to run your business of real estate as a business.

The part time mother, the retired businessman, the recently divorced, the laid off or injured tradesman, or the doctor's wife are all stereotypes of people who have entered real estate sales. I know a lot of these agents, too. And a lot of them are the best negotiators and business people I've ever encountered. They spend thousands of dollars a year on seminars and training programs, and through their efforts have become absolute professionals.

Some agents have spent little or no time or money to learn how to manage their businesses. They have been described by one agent as those enjoying "the big kill." They sell 5 or 6 houses a year and make an average of $2,500 in commissions on each sale. They put in a few hours a week and are very nice people, but rely heavily on their broker and company image to continue their careers.

The newest breed of agent though, is fresh out of college. They are choosing real estate as a primary profession, and are challenging the industry, with dramatic results.

Michael Soares is a good example. A graduate of USC, he went to work as a commercial lender, analyzing multimillion dollar a year business proposals. Studying economic forces, he saw the opportunities in residential real estate. He became a Realtor in mid 1992 at the age of 26.

In his first several months as a licensee, he attended two six-week real estate workshops and sold only two houses. However, he simultaneously invested in a computer, hired several assistants, and implemented everything he learned at once. In January, he wrote his own detailed business plan and set a goal to complete 30 transactions in 1993.

By February 20, Michael had already put 18 transactions in escrow.

He sees many young professionals like himself buying their first homes, and they want quality service. He says, "I know how important it is to have professionals do what they do best. That's why I have assistants working for me that have been in the business longer than I have to take care of the details. That keeps me free to do what I do best . . .negotiate sales!"

While some agents feel they have to hand carry each document and handle all communications throughout the listing and escrow periods personally, Mr. Soares sees it differently. He figures it's his job to represent his client and not be a secretary. His weekly planner is filled out six months in advance, outlining the activities he must do to achieve his goals. He agrees he'll have to reevaluate them.

So, what kind of person is this young man? "I'm a business person," he replies.

Lugo wins award for helping with AIDS

Richard Lugo, owner of Shell-by-the-Sea in Carmel-by-the-Sea, was one of 12 organizations and individuals honored recently by the Monterey County AIDS Project (MCAP) for outstanding contributions during 1994 to the county-wide effort to prevent the spread of the HIV virus and support for people infected.

Mr. Lugo was honored for organizing Shell service stations throughout his district in a three-month campaign for HIV/AIDS awareness and fundraising.

Group claims film helps tourism

A newly released study examining the impact of Paradise on the Bay, a 30 minute television broadcast promoting the recreational resources and visitor services in Monterey County, indicates that 61% of those surveyed said they had visited Monterey County since watching the Paradise on the Bay broadcast.

The Conversion Study, commissioned by KCBA-Fox 35 on behalf of the Monterey County Travel and Tourism Alliance, also indicates that 26% of those surveyed said they had visited Monterey County as a direct result of watching Paradise on the Bay. Another 29% of those surveyed said they were still making plans to visit.

The 25 page study also shows that those who did visit Monterey County stayed an average of three days and on the average visited in groups of three people.

Using proven economic analysis techniques and traditional industry economic multipliers, Media Management Associates concluded that the economic impact of Paradise on the Bay on the tourism industry in Monterey County, as represented in a dollar value, has totaled at least $2,078,356. The Paradise on the Bay Conversion Study states, "The actual economic impact of Paradise on the Bay is significantly greater than the scope of the Conversion Study can qualify."

VALLEY FINANCE
Douglas Pease

Today's blue skies serve to boost my morale after a stormy response in the markets to seven increases of the federal funds rate. Barring terrorist attacks and an LA earthquake, we should see a phenomenal display of business growth over the coming five years. If you have been putting off even a modest investment in any of the world's stock markets, this is the time to act.

There are two reasons for my enthusiasm. Successful companies are operating globally at higher levels of innovation than most of us can comprehend. And access to information about these companies is more available to more investors than I have ever seen in my twenty-five years as a financial planner. I'll support the second claim with an example.

Last year J.P. Morgan spent $30 million to gather research upon which to base its investment decisions. The result was more winners than losers in its portfolios under management. It takes $50 million to open an new account with J.P. Morgan, but an investor can share the same investment decisions on a $30 (thirty dollar) contribution to the variable annuity product for which J.P. Morgan is now a portfolio manager. That's an advantage, wouldn't you say?

There is no guarantee of investment success, just as there is no guarantee against frost next week. But today's access to investment advantages is as breathtaking as our sunshine after the weeks of rain. Worth considering, wouldn't you say?

FLASH GORDON
THERE IS THE PALACE...
CAN YOU SEE THE LANDING STRIP?
YES.
PLEASE, FLASH, REMEMBER, YOU ARE A PRINCE...
NO NEED TO MENTION THAT THE TITLE IS HONORARY.
THAT'S NOT THE QUEEN'S SHIP.
IT'S NOT LIKE ANY SHIP I'VE SEEN.
WELCOME BACK, YOUR MAJESTY...
DID YOUR TRIP GO WELL?
A BOMB WAS FOUND ON BOARD.
PRINCE XAN AND MY LOYAL RETINUE SAVED ME...
...THEN DIED AS THE SHIP EXPLODED.
Written by Thomas Warkentin
SHORTLY, NEARBY...
WELL?
HIGHNESS, OUR BOMB DID DETONATE ...ONLY THE QUEEN SURVIVED.
WHO IS THE MAN WITH HER?
HER NEW CHAMPION, PRINCE FLASH, OF MONGO.
I WOULDN'T WORRY, HIGHNESS, HE LOOKS LIKE AN ACTOR, A PRETTY BOY.
HE MOVES LIKE AN ATHLETE ...A FIGHTER.
I'M NOT WORRIED, LIGO, BUT BRING THE STRANGE ONE TO ME TONIGHT, AFTER DARK.

Sanctuary announces special art contest

The Monterey Bay National Marine Sanctuary Office, a division of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), in cooperation with the Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments (AMBAG), announced today a statewide design contest for California's new Monterey Bay National Marine Sanctuary License Plate.

A jury of prominent community representatives will carefully review all designs and choose three finalists to submit to the Department of Motor Vehicles. This committee includes Clark Kellogg, Executive Vice President and Creative Director, The Nature Company; Julie Packard, Executive Director, Monterey Bay Aquarium; Mark D'Estout, Director of Graphic Design, U.C. Santa Cruz Extension; Diane Stracuzzi, Director of Marketing, The Pebble Beach Company; Terry Jackson, NOAA Sanctuary Manager; and Nick Papadakis, Executive Director of AMBAG.

The Design Review Committee was selected with assistance from the Monterey Advertising Club and the Cultural Councils of Santa Cruz and Monterey County.

Designs will be available for public review in Monterey and Santa Cruz on Saturday and Sunday, February 25 and 26. The Design Review Committee will announce the winner of the award in March at a televised press conference.

The deadline for design submittal is 5 p.m. on February 22, 1995. All designs should be submitted to: Sanctuary Design Contest, Attn: Liz Love, Monterey Bay National Marine Sanctuary, 299 Foam, Suite D, Monterey, CA 93940.

The creator of the final image selected must agree to relinquish all ownership rights to the image to the United States or the State of California. No royalties or other payments shall be offered other than the $1000 award.

For further information about the contest or press conference, or to request the complete Request for Designs, please contact Liz Love at the Sanctuary office at 647-4255. For information about how to purchase a Sanctuary license plate, please contact the Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments at 883-3750.
